Breitling's heirs were interested in flying, so that the production focused more on certain chronographs and measuring instruments for sports and especially for aviation. The most famous product was the extraordinary chronograph Navitimer in 1952. Since half a century, the Navitimer, the most distinctive and known chronograph of sports and flying watch brands, is unofficially a basic equipment for pilots, flight engineers and air crew personnel. The watches by this chronograph specialist are mostly found on male wrists, some even say that a Breitling can be the only gem for a successful man befitting his rank. The company continues its programme and is one of the greatest watch brands of the world. We strive to provide our customers with high quality pictures of our watches. In parts, the images have been greatly enlarged to show more detail. The condition can best be seen and judged on the pictures. Please find the inspection protocol enclosed. The pictures show the actual watch you are bidding on. All pictures were taken by Zeitauktion GmbH. According to DIN 8310, a watch's water resistance is not permanently guaranteed. It is affected by the aging of gaskets or deformation of watch parts over the course of time. Please refer to the enclosed information about water resistance and have a look at the test certificate. In case there is no information on any specified water resistance level, the watch has not been tested by us. Please have a look at our feedback.
