avail... What exactly does BUPNP do, when I open the "library" tap? Does it start searching for a UPnP server on my network? It looks like this search or behavior is causing the wifi stack on the phone to reset. This definitely started happening which the last update, yesterday or two days ago... I tried some other dlna clients on the phone... they are all working normally. ./ Tried that... no joy. Still does not detect the running server. Also tried to start/stop Mezzmo server... still no luck. The Mezzmo Server does show up on the phone when in the LAN and does work fine in the LAN. Any other thoughts on how to resolve? Thanks. This may be a clue? When I start/stop the BubbleUPnP server, Windows XP pops up a message asking from which account do I want to run the program and I have to uncheck the box labeled "Protect my computer and data from unauthorized program activity." I already did that. I rebooted every involved component: to no avail... What exactly does BUPNP do, when I open the "library" tap? Does it start searching for a UPnP server on my network? The current version has some changes in networking, but none that would reset the WiFi stack (!!!), unless something is seriously broken. EDIT: issue solved in the next version of BubbleUPnP. The current version is triggering a WiFi bug on some versions of the HTC Desire. Last edited: Jan 15, 2012 This may be a clue? Thanks. I'll install it and see how it goes, but it is probable there's a discovery problem with this server, and that BubbleUPnP Server only sees it after a while when Mezzmo itself broadcast its presence. Since upgrading to ICS I am no longer able to play video files from my NAS, locally or rendered on my tv. I have a WIFI-only Xoom. Prior to upgrading to ICS everything worked perfectly. Any suggestions? A few questions to narrow down the problem: - what is your version of Android ? - for the track that do not show album art, can you check in foobar2000 that the Album Art Viewer component displays it ? - does it ever happen if you disable the cover cache (Settings > Advanced settings) - does it happen for tracks displayed in the Playlist tab ? in the Library tab (if so, in which container ? a Playlist ?) ? Both the Playlist and Library tabs ? Thanks! To answer your questions, I'm running 2.3.3. The tracks all show album art in foobar. Was still happening when I disabled cover cache. It loads correctly in Now Playing, but doesn't show in the Playlist tab if it was missing in the library. I was able to get it to happen easily in Library > Playlists, and also in Library > Folders. After doing all that debugging I noticed one interesting thing. I've got a default "Home" server setup to always be available so that I can access my library through the internet whether I'm home or not. This issue only seems to happen when connected that way. When I use the exact same server on the exact same machine, but connected through the broadcasted servers (i.e. the ones that bubbleUPnP finds automatically) then the problem went away. The same 100 song playlist loaded fine and all songs had artwork. To answer your questions, I'm running 2.3.3. The tracks all show album art in foobar. BubbleUPnP Server intercepts album art thumbnail requests, and resize images dynamically if necessary to optimize bandwidth (useful when you're on a mobile connection). So I guess something fails here. At least I know where to look for.
